You told us that there were too many administration returns relating to clinic changes.

We have given the RSS management team software permissions to amend certain clinic type selection errors; this makes sure patients are on the correct pathway but, we need your support in getting the patients referred into the correct clinic, first time. This process has highlighted a number of anomalies in how referrals are made. The most frequent changes made are to referrals into GI and Liver services so we asked York Trust for guidance to indicate which conditions should be referred into which clinics.

Please use the information below for reference when selecting clinics for your referrals.

We will continue to monitor and provide feedback to practice admin teams regarding selection errors to help support learning and development. The RSS team have changed over 300 clinic types since November 2018.

Please refer to the guidance documents here for reference when selecting clinics for your referrals.

To support ongoing learning and development we will continue to monitor and provide feedback to practice admin teams regarding selection errors.
